

Alvotech and Islandsbanki enter into Market Making Agreement for Shares Trading on Nasdaq Iceland

October 5, 2023

Alvotech (Nasdaq: ALVO) and Íslandsbanki hf. ("Islandsbanki") have entered into a market making agreement. According to the market making agreement, Islandsbanki places bids and offers for ALVO shares trading on the Nasdaq Iceland Main Market (the "Exchange") for a minimum amount with a fixed spread between the bid and offer price.

Islandsbanki will post bids and offers on the exchange amounting to at least ISK 8 million at market value at any given time at a price determined by Islandsbanki, which shall deviate no more than 3% from the last traded price. The spread between bid and ask market making orders will be held as close as possible to 1.5%, in accordance with the Exchange's tick size increments in effect at that time but should be at least 1.45% unless changes in the exchange's fixed tick size increments require a reduction in the spread below that limit. If Islandsbanki's net volume of trades within a single trading day exceeds ISK 60 million, the maximum spread between bid and ask market making orders will be considered to be no longer binding, for the remainder of the day. If Alvotech's share price increases or decreases by more than 5% within a trading day, Islandsbanki may double the spread between bid and ask market making orders for the remainder of the day.

The market making agreement goes into effect at the start of trading on the Exchange on Friday October 6, 2023. It is for an indefinite term, but each of the two parties may choose to terminate after giving a 14-day prior notice.

Previous market making agreements with Landsbankinn hf. and Arion Bank hf. for ALVO shares trading on the Exchange remain in effect.
